Irrigation - minor - Hadagalli taluk - Hampapatnam village - Talaparigi nala - silted up - abandonment of the source - transfer of lands to dry - proposals.

The Hampapatnam Talaparigi channel is a minor irrigation source with an ayacut of 56.76 acres as noted below.

	Extent.	Assessment.	Quit-rent.
Ryotwari lands	48.83	304-60
Inam lands	7.93	73-1-0	35-6-8
	56.76	377-7-0	35-6-8

It receives its supply from a spring in the surplus vanka of Nagimavinahalli Pedda tank and Chinna tank about two miles south-east of Hampapatnam village. The channel which is two miles long and which is badly silted up from the spring head to the tail end is fully covered with rank vegetation. There are only 40 ryots owning lands under the channel, of whom 18 are non-residents, which accounts for the failure on the part of the ryots to remove silt every year. Under the provisions of the Kudimaramath Act the ayacutdars were directed to remove silt and to restore the channel. They represent that as experienced by them, water cannot be tapped even though the silt deposits are removed and that they are able to raise

raise only dry crops from a long time. They therefore request that the source be abandoned and the lands transferred to dry.

2. A perusal of the statistics of revenue and remissions shows that during the last 10 years, Tirvakammi Remission (W - D) was granted during seven faslis, the exceptions being in fasli 1339, 1342 and 1343 and that from fasli 1344 remissions are being granted continuously. This was due to the non-availability of water in the channel.

3. The Sub Divisional Officer, Hospet, who inspected the channel and examined the trial pits at the spring head is of opinion that there will be enough springs which can be tapped to give supply to the ayacut lands, that the removal of the deposits and the rank vegetation may cost about Rs.1500/- and that the cost of repairs may be borne by the Government as it is too much to be borne by the ayacutdars and that the future maintenance of the channel by them may be enforced. Most of the ayacutdars are non-residents and have expressed their inability and unwillingness to render Kudimaramath labour even after the removal of the silt at Government cost. They request that the source be abandoned and that the lands be transferred to dry. The financial effect of the proposal involves a decrease of revenue of Rs. 225/- per year.

4. It seems to me that it is considerably more than can reasonably be expected as Kudimaramath, the length of the channel being long and the number of ayacutdars being small, I consider that it is not worthwhile spending a large sum of Rs. 1500/- and get the silt removed as the ayacutdars are not willing for its future maintenance. Hence the only course left open is to abandon the source. I recommend that it may be ordered to be done and the lands transferred to dry.

2. The Colr recommends the abandonment of Talaparigi nala, a N.D. source in Hampapatnam Vge, Hadagalli Tk and the transfer of its ayacut to dby.

Abandonment of the source.

14, C.S 91/36, B&O Vol I BK no 68

Under B&O 8(5) an irrigation source can be ordered to be abandoned by the Board if it had been in a ruined state for five years and if the permanent loss of revenue to the Govt does not exceed Rs 500/-.

para 2, f 2 Cj

In the present case the Colr reports that remission (W-D) was granted for successively for the last five fashis and that the financial effect of the proposal involves a decrease in revenue of Rs 225/- only. The ryot has given full reasons for the abandonment of the source. The Board may therefore sanction the abandonment of the source. para 3, p 2 of

(ii) Transfer of ayacut to dry.

The ayacutdars ~~have consented to~~ request the transfer of wet lands to dry. The ayacut consists of 48.83 acres of ryotwari lands and 7.93 acres of inam lands. The Board may sanction the transfer of the ryotwari ayacut to dry. para 1, p 2 of para 1, p 1 of Inam Section will please note on the question of the transfer of the inam ~~lands~~ ayacut to dry.
